Donaldson Hall on Most Endangered List

Since 2001, Montana Preservation Alliance has annually turned the spotlight on those places throughout Montana which are unique to local and state history and which face serious preservation challenges. This year, MSU-Northern's Donaldson Hall is one of the historic properties to be featured on Montana's Most Endangered list. The list highlights four at-risk historic properties important to our understanding of Montana's history and heritage. They are diverse property-types that reflect the geographic breadth of the state.

"MPA looks forward to working with local preservationists, national advocacy groups, and state and Federal agencies to try and steer a course that ultimately preserves and renews these irreplaceable historic resources," said Kate Hampton, Most Endangered Program Director at MPA.

The beautiful Collegiate Gothic style dormitory on Montana State University-Northern's campus is an intrinsic part of the Havre campus' history and architectural landscape. The building served as the primary women's residence hall from its construction in 1936 through the mid-1970s, when Northern constructed modern dorms. After that, the building's first story was used for offices and the fully restored and inviting, "Commons" reception room served as a venue for University and community events. The upper stories became storage areas. Unfortunately, these uses do not generate sufficient funds for the building's upkeep, including heating and repair. As a result, the University shut down the building in 2008. Today, it stands unheated and unused, and in danger of demolition by the University system. The Chancellor, together with the alumni association and community members are hopeful that a fiscally-sound preservation plan can be implemented, and the building will be rehabilitated and brought into new use as a multipurpose building in which to house students and guests, as office space, and as an event venue.

Word 2007 tip: Customizing AutoCorrect to Save Time

By Marianne Hoppe

You can use AutoCorrect in Word to save some time by assigning abbreviations to frequently used names, phrases, and terminology. For instance, you can have Word automatically substitute "MSU-Northern" every time you type "msun". Here's how:

1. Click the Office button in the upper left hand corner of Word 2007.
2. Click the Word Options button at the bottom.
3. Select Proofing from the left hand list.
4. Click the AutoCorrect Options... button.
5. In the middle of the AutoCorrect window is the "Replace text as you type" section. In the Replace: box type "msun" and then enter "MSU-Northern" in the With: box.
6. Click the Add button, then OK.

You can also do this in Word 2003 - The AutoCorrect Options are found on the Tools menu.

By: Bill Lanier

The NAIA has released their preseason rankings for wrestling teams and Northern is sitting in the number 12 spot. In the 51 year history of NAIA wrestling, Northern has been one of the most successful programs in the country. Here are a few numbers to back that up. Northern has had at least one All-American (place in the top eight) every year for the past 28 years, Northern has more NAIA National team championships than any other current NAIA school and only one current NAIA school has more individual champions than Northern (Simon Fraser has 39 compared to 29 for Northern). This weekend the lights will be competing at the Cowboy in Laramie Wyoming.
