The newly completed Tilleman Field on MSU-Northern's campus is more than just a field; it's the culmination of a community effort to improve student life at Northern.
The MSU-Northern Foundation has put up a billboard showing the campus an architectural rendering of what phase two of the new Northern Multipurpose Center (NMC) might look like.

Senator Daines Toured MSU-Northern

U.S. Senator Steve Daines was on campus, Wednesday, (Oct. 14). During his short 1-hour visit, he had a tour of campus and met with several campus leaders and faculty members. Assistant Professor Lorren Schlotfeldt was on hand to explain how Northern’s plumbing apprenticeship program prepares a qualified plumbing workforce. Senator Daines was very impressed with our facilities and how Northern’s programs are meeting the needs of Montana.

Facemask of the week – Show your School Spirit

One of the best ways students have been showing their school spirit this year has been with Northern branded facemasks. Several departments brought in a limited supply of Northern branded facemasks (alumni, athletics, and admissions to name a few). The Northern bookstore, located in the Student Union Building (SUB), also has a nice selection of MSU-Northern branded facemasks for sale. Show your school spirit while you keep the campus safe and have classes face to face. Go Lights!

For one month, from November 21st to December 21st, individuals will be able to vote for their favorite house by donating on our crowdfunding site. It doesn’t cost a thing to participate and there will be a cash prize for the winning house! More details about the competition will come later in November. The Real Mindset List

The September 11, 2020, TidBit in the Northern Network News had a link to the “The Marist Mindset List.” This list was drastically different than “The Beloit Mindset List” that we all came to enjoy over the past 20+ years. Ron Nief, Tom McBride and Charles Westerberg created a new list recently for those of us that truly missed “The Real Mindset List.”

Here we have Ron’s, Tom’s and Charles’ observations on the world of entering college students this fall:

“The 18 year-olds starting classes at colleges and universities this fall--the first students in American history forbidden by circumstance from hugging their fellow high school graduates--may reasonably expect to live until 2087. Half of them will need more than four years to finish college with most of them choosing a major based on job prospects. They are generally cynical with two thirds indicating they feel people are basically untrustworthy.

6. Tom Brady has always been winning Superbowls.
7. Their world has always been revolving around an Axis of Evil.
8. Roomba has always been scooting around the floor, leaving things cleaner in its path.
9. Jason Bourne has always had an identity problem.
10. The Spanish peseta, Italian lira, and French franc have never been legal tender.
11. There have always been known knowns, known unknowns, and unknown unknowns.
12. Cars have always been able to park themselves.
13. NATO has always included most of Eastern Europe.
14. The TSA has always welcomed their families to their flights.
15. Autumn air has always held the aroma of pumpkin spice lattes.
16. Human beings have always been sending one another electronic signals through their nervous systems.
17. Bernard Law was never Archbishop of Boston.
18. Switzerland and East Timor have always been members of the United Nations.
19. Important and powerful people have always cautiously watched for white powder in their mail.
20. Dialing a mobile phone has always been sooooooo last century.
21. Kale, carrots and Peruvian potatoes have always brought a tasty shade of purple to a meal.
22. WorldCom has never been around to offer cell service.
23. Dieters have always been counting carbs down on South Beach.
24. A Latina, Frida Kahlo, has always been honored on an American postage stamp.
